

ABOUT RICHARD WINTERS

Richard considers himself a product of the many great horsemen he has had the privilege to ride with. The absence of a fixed destination fuels his passion. "The further I go in my horsemanship, the further there is to travel while on this journey!" From the weekend trail rider to the competitive world of three-day-eventing and reined cow horses, Richard makes it possible for people to realize their own horsemanship dreams.

Richard Winters' horsemanship journey has earned him Colt Starting and Horse Showing Championship titles. Obtaining his goal of a World Championship in the National Reined Cow Horse Association became a reality, where he is now also an AA rated judge. Another of Richard's horsemanship goals was realized with his Road to the Horse Colt Starting Championship and then returning for 5 consecutive years as the Horseman's Host. In 2016 he will again enter one of the competition's round pens and go for the RTTH Colt Starting title. In 2015, Winters earned the NRCHA Hackamore Circuit Championship title in Pueblo, Colorado and the Limited Open Derby Championship in Paso Robles, California.

His international travels include Canada, Australia, Mexico, Sweden, Scotland, Brazil, and in Poland he earned the European International Colt Starting Champion title. Richard is a "Masterful Communicator" with horses and humans alike! You can catch Richard's horsemanship on his RFD TV series - it airs on Wednesdays at 3pm and 11pm eastern time.

In each episode of "Richard Winters Horsemanship" you'll see his dual approach to communication demonstrated again and again, and it is Richard's aim for his viewers to be able to incorporate his equine communication principles and experience the positive results for themselves – right in their own barns, with their own horses. Whether you ride English or Western, competitive or just for fun, all can benefit by learning Richard Winters' horsemanship principles and applying his techniques.
